HARVARD SQUARE

Harvard Square is at the epicenter of Cambridge. Where brilliant minds have come to live, create and collaborate since the Colonial Era. It is the heart of progress, from George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and John F. Kennedy to Conan O'Brien and Matt Damon. Harvard Square stands the test of time. Anchored by the prestigious and trailblazing Harvard University next door, an intellectual and inquisitive energy cuts through the air and bubbles over to influence the entire square. This neighborhood is filled with noteworthy restaurants, unique stores, buzzing coffee shops, street performers and art - all in one of the oldest neighborhoods in the country that simultaneously feels more alive and vibrant than ever.

With dazzling views along the Charles River, 8 U.S. Presidents, 79 Nobel laureates, nearly 400 Rhodes Scholars and 48 Pulitzer Prize winners have attended Harvard University, but Harvard Square is for us all.

56.5%

LAPTOPS & LATTES

Like Newbury Street, Harvard Square mainly consists of an affluent group of residents that are typically single, well-educated professionals in the finance, entertainment, computer, business and legal industries. They are cosmopolitan at heart and technologically savvy consumers that usually walk, bike or use mass transit to get to where they need to be.

29.2%

METRO RENTERS

A fairly prominent group in the neighborhood, these residents thrive in urban life settings with many currently enrolled in higher education. Ranging from their late twenties to thirties, they spend most of their earnings on rent, clothes and likes to keep up with the latest technology, spending most of their day on their computers and cell phones.

14.3%

DORMS TO DIPLOMAS

Primarily consisting of college students, these residents mainly stick to a strict budget, where fast food and seasonal sales are their main options. Most of their time is spent in school, working part-time or socializing and having fun with friends. This purely online generation has been using computers, the Internet and their cell phones for their entire life.
